ACE learning communities register students for a combination of two to three general education courses and a small group, 1-credit integrating seminar CAS 110. Courses are grouped to provide students with an introduction to various academic perspectives while fulfilling graduation requirements. CAS 110 is led by a trained upperclassman peer mentor who supports you in your new learning environment. Space is limited to 15 students per learning community. Admitted UHM students may apply online for an ACE learning community. Learning communities fill up very quickly, so sign up today!

Freshman Seminars (FS)

Tel: (808) 956-8626

By limiting classes to a maximum of ten (10) freshman students, Freshman Seminars offer incoming students an opportunity to learn in small class settings while fulfilling general educational requirements. The seminars encourage interactive learning with a discussion-based curriculum. Courses are led by qualified, advanced students under the direction of senior faculty members. FS courses are an excellent way to supplement an ACE learning community schedule, or can be taken independent of a learning community. How do you register? Classified freshmen can follow normal online course registration procedures. When registering, please select the appropriate Freshman Seminar course section. Note: All Freshman Seminar sections are 300+.
